THIS MATTER is before the Court on the petitioner's "Motion To Void Future Requests For Extension Of Time," filed April 9, 2007.

By this Motion, the petitioner essentially contends that a great deal of time already has elapsed since the time that he filed his Motion to Vacate on January 3, 2007; and that the government should not be able to secure any more than the single extension of time which it already has obtained in this case. Consequently, the petitioner asks the Court to "reject, disregard, nullify, deny or void any future requests on the part of the Government for an extension of time."

Suffice it to say, however, such request by the petitioner is unwarranted and baseless. Indeed, there is no basis to support this Motion. Moreover, the government now has filed its response to the petitioner's Motion to Vacate. Accordingly, the instant Motion is hereby DENIED.
